Chapter 11
The Greatest Hideaway

"Follow me," said Crumb, leading the way along the curvy baseboards of the roundhouse. Pinch had extra scurry in his scamper, and he was the first one in.

Zip-to the bathroom he hid by the sink, then slid in the tub for a quick-flick drink.

He scaled up the tub, and caught the cat's eye. He jumped over her ears and passed her right by.

The kitchen - oh, no! One monster mistake, Mom let out a squeal that made the house shake.

Everything handy was tossed in the air, "SHOO IT OUT," she screamed, and gave me the stare!
